

Celebrate Your Students' Hard Work

College Board National Recognition Program

College Board National Recognition Program reflects the achievement of both the individual and the school, often garnering the attention of local communities.

Here are 4 ways you can help your students and school celebrate:

- 1 Share on social media. Our templates make it easy to announce awardees on your platforms.
- 2 Plan for your next assembly. Our toolkit includes slides you can use to recognize awardees.
- 3 Contact your local media. Our toolkit has a press release template so your local community can celebrate the news with you.
- 4 Get creative. There are so many ways to spotlight National Recognition Program awardees through in-school celebrations, morning announcements, your school paper or newsletter, and more.

About

The annual awards recognize the hard work of thousands of top-performing students every year:

- National First-Generation Recognition Program (New)
- National African American Recognition Program
- National Hispanic Recognition Program
- National Indigenous Recognition Program
- National Rural and Small Town Recognition Program

Encourage your students to check their status and download their certificate on BigFuture® today.